Newton Honored for Biotech Work

CONCORD – New Hampshire Biotechnology Council President Paula Newton was recently recognized with a citation from the Office of the Governor for her work in creating opportunities for the industry’s growth in the state.

As President of the Council for the past four years, Newton has been instrumental in the creation of a new website for the group, developing an outreach strategy to attract expanding medical device companies to New Hampshire and coordinating participation in industry trade shows to raise visibility of the Granite State as a preferred business destination.

In addition to being President of the Council, Newton serves as Market Research and Information Analyst for the New Hampshire Division of Economic Development’s Office of International Commerce. In this role, she is responsible for assisting New Hampshire companies with international trade opportunities, export logistics and documentation issues.

Newton also manages the NH International Trade Resource Center Resource Library and has extensive experience in the biotechnology, medical devices, and clinical diagnostics industry segments.
